1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

3. Claims 1-7 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Vaidyanathan et al. in view of Bagley.

Vaidyanathan et al. discloses the invention substantially as claimed. Vaidyanathan et al. discloses a method of forming a sintered body comprising:

- providing a metal powder and a binder;
- removing the binder to form a debound body; and
- sintering the debound body to form a sintered body.

Art Unit: 1742

Vaidyanathan et al. further discloses wherein the binder includes carbamide (col. 4, line 17).

Vaidyanathan et al. further discloses a temperature range for removing the binder that overlaps that as claimed by Applicant, establishing a prima facie case of obviousness.

Vaidyanathan et al. further discloses that powders used in sintering processes can be looked to in the invention (col. 3, lines 40-63), but is silent as to stainless steel powders.

It is common knowledge to use stainless steel powders in applications where the formed product is to be used in a corrosive environment, thus it is obvious to use stainless steel powders in the invention of Viadyanathan et al. in order to form a corrosion resistant body.

However, Vaidyanathan et al. is silent as to machining the of the green body.

Bagley teaches that green bodies can be machined in the same field of endeavor (col. for the purpose of forming detail upon the final body.

It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to use green body machining as taught by Bagley in the invention of Vaidyanathan et al. in order to form final detail upon the sintered body.

4. The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

Art Unit: 1742

5. Claim 3 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

Claim 3 contains language that provides for a selection of temperature ranges that results in an unclear limitation, i.e. range within a range, that renders the claim indefinite.
